"We are very excited to announce the opening of our new restaurant," said Jadran Peros, head chef of Roko Italian Cuisine. "I have been cooking for over 25 years and can't wait to share some my favorite recipes with our new Wilmington customers."

The dinner menu offers an array of seafood, steak, pasta and salads. Some of their legendary menu items, like shrimp scampi and veal parmigiana are available; but you will also find menu items influenced by their new location such as, Flounder Ana, the battered and sautéed fish in white wine cream sauce with prosciutto.

"My husband takes great pride in each dish that is served," said Vojka Peros. "Likewise, I will be in the restaurant every night, committed to ensuring each guest receives an exceptional dining experience. We are truly dedicated to this business and our community."

Their new restaurant, Roko Italian Cuisine, is named after their son Roko. They like to call the atmosphere "upscale casual dining," you will find tablecloths but there is nothing uptight about this venue. Go after work with friends or on the weekend with family and simply enjoy a fabulous meal. At Roko Italian Cuisine you will always feel like part of their family.

Vojka and Jadran first worked at Nikola's of Morehead City, under head chef and brother, Zdenko Peros. Later they branched out to run their own establishment and opened Nikola's of New Bern, where they owned and operated independently for over 15 years.
